Found guilty of capital murder

James Billiot to await more trials on death row

By WAYNE DUOMB JR.
James Billiot, alleged Thanksgiving day sledgehammer murderer, will be sent to death row at Parchman State Penitentiary pending appeal of a Thursday conviction of one of three killings in the Leetown Community.
Billiot, 21, was found guilty of capital murder and sentenced to death in the gas chamber by a jury of 11 men and one woman.
The jury convicted the Leetown resident of killing and robbing his stepfather, Wallace Croll on Thanksgiving day last year.
Billiot also faces two more yet to be scheduled trials in the killings the same day of his mother, Audry Croll and teenage stepbrother, Cheryl Croll.
All three victims were found shot to death in their Leetown home.
The four-day Circuit Court trial was conducted at Harrison County's First Judicial District Courthouse in Gulfport.
Yvonne Sills, one of Billiot's two court-appointed attorneys, Friday morning in Bay St. Louis said her client will be held at the Harrison Jail in Gulfport for about a week while post-trial motions are filed seeking a State Supreme Court appeal.
She noted Billiot must be present for court hearings when the motions are filed in Circuit Court.

Mississippi law requires an appeal for a capital murder conviction in a lower court.
Sills confirmed Billiot will then be transferred to death row at Parchman until the next trial.
Billiot remained quiet and unemotional throughout most of the trial.
He would repeatedly stroke his scraggly goatee, mustache, beard or hair; rock in his chair; or look at the some 30 spectators in the audience.
But just after Place Two Circuit Court Judge J. Ruble Griffin sentenced Billiot based on the jury's decision; the alleged murderer asked for, but was denied requests for new attorneys and a press conference.
But Griffin did allow Billiot to speak to the court.
Billiot stated, as he has previously, "After when I leave here I'm going to try to get another case heard. I will try to get a new lawyer."
"I'm trying to get in touch with a religious organization. I am a religious person. I tried to get in touch with a religious organization," he said.
"I am very in need of help... any Jewish organization, I have a case you would understand. I have not gotten that yet. They think I'm a bad man," Billiot stated.
Earlier, Billiot asked Griffin when and where his case would be presented to the Supreme Court.
Griffin replied he did not know the date, but the hearing would be in Jackson.
Billiot also asked who the prosecutor would be before the Supreme Court. Griffin replied the state attorney general would represent the state.
In response to other questions, Griffin informed Billiot there would be two additional murder trials which would be prosecuted by the district attorney.
Griffin set Jan. 15 as Billiot's execution date as required by state statute, but explained the sentence would not be carried out on that day because of the appeal requirement, also in the law.
The jury unanimously decided to impose the death sentence at about 7 p.m. after deliberating about 90 minutes.
In appealing to the jury to impose the death sentence, District Attorney Albert Necaise utilized his frequently used analogy comparing football game rules to the game of life.
"James Billiot should be put out of the game of life because he violated the most serious rule. Your verdict should be one of death," Necaise stated.
The district attorney also argued that Billiot's broken home and unfortunate experiences did not excuse him from the crime of murder.
Nicholas (Mac) Haas, Billiot's other attorney, told the jury a life imprisonment sentence would be more appropriate than death.

He said Billiot "had serious mental problems" and was "substantially impaired" when the crime occurred.
Haas also speculated Billiot could have inherited mental illness because of such problems his mother had and his father is experiencing now.
Regarding Billiot allegedly stealing money and an automobile in the incident, Haas stated, "He was just in a situation of trying to get out of Dodge and get some money."
Helen Stevenson of Poydras, La., Billiot's aunt, testified Wallace Croll was hostile toward the alleged murderer, but did not beat him.
Stevenson said Audry Croll attempted suicide several times and beat Billiot with a shoe when he was a young child.

"I think we'd be just as bad to kill him (Billiot). I'd stake my life on it, that boy is sick," she sobbed.

Hancock's Fair Council cited as state's best

By ELLIS CUEVAS
The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Louisiana World's Fair Council Steering Committee Thursday night heard a special report from Tish Haas of the Mississippi Tourism Division.
The Hancock County native had high praises for the local council activities.
Upon hearing the actions planned and already taken, she said, "The Hancock County group is the best by far as to organization to all of the council's I have visited throughout the state."
Miss Haas resides in Jackson and said her duties have taken her in recent months throughout the state.
"Many councils on the World's Fair have been formed, but they have not put any plans into action like this one. The work done now will really pay off in the years to come," Haas added, and continued, "I have even picked up several ideas I will spread over the state to other councils."

Dave Treutel, chairman of the Hancock County council, introduced Miss Haas who also made a slide presentation to the some 36 persons in attendance.
An update was given on the state's involvement in preparation for the Louisiana Expedition in 1984 in New Orleans. She spoke on the importance of economic development in terms of money that will be brought into Mississippi by travelers going to the Fair.
Tourism was mentioned as being the third largest industry in the state which provides over 30,000 jobs for Mississippians.
She said, "Stress should be given to unique items of our area. Hancock County has a lot to offer, and we should be proud of our heritage. The World's Fair will affect Hancock County, and

Eight-foot bird escapes after quarrel with mate

By BRENT MACEY
A very rare eight-foot tall bird which can run 80 miles per hour is on the loose in Hancock County.
An emu, named Bacall, escaped from her pen on Crump Road in Hancock County at approximately 8:30 a.m. Saturday, apparently after having had a lovers quarrel with her mate named Bogey.

The owners, Judge S. Sanford Levy and Darleen Levy, do not think the bird is dangerous, although it has large claws—some one-and-one-half feet long—and can kick like a mule.
Bogey, knocked down the Levy's caretaker, a full grown man, during Bacall's escape, Mrs. Levy said Saturday.

She explained that Bogey has been attempting to mate with Bacall the past few days.
"He's really become very aggressive," Mrs. Levy said.
"Apparently she (Bacall) didn't want to mate with him and he started beating her up," she said about the Saturday morning affair.
"He was kicking her and even plucked out some of her feathers," she said.
The Levy's caretaker, Mark Walker, tried to separate the two. During the attempt, Bogey kicked him and knocked him down, Mrs. Levy said.
Bacall, in her attempts to get away from her mate, broke through a fenced pen and ran off, Mrs. Levy stated.
"I'm just afraid some hunters will shoot it," she said about the bird which is similar to an ostrich and indigenous to the bush country in Australia.
"Hunters may think it's something out of a space ship. When it gets scared it gets riled up and puffs up its feathers. It just bugs." The Levy's have had the birds for just over one year and this is the first time mating has been attempted, Mrs. Levy said.
Normally the birds are a loving couple.
"They'll walk around together and pick bugs off each other. They're a perfect pair, but now he's gotten very mean," she said.
Whether or not this is usual bird behavior is unknown to the Levy's who say veterinarians know little about the rare animals.
The Levy's are hoping Bacall will forgive her mate and return home.
But anyone who spots the bird is requested to call 467-5110.

LONELY LOVER—Bogey, an emu owned by Judge S. Sanford Levy and Darleen Levy on Crump Road in Hancock County, paces about his pen Saturday several hours after his mate, Bacall, escaped.

Energy Answers

From the Mississippi Energy Extension Center

Q. What percentage of the total electric bill do lights represent? Will keeping them turned off make a big difference in the bill?

A. Home lighting amounts to only a small percentage of the total utility bill—about 3.9 percent, according to government figures. Even though most of the energy costs and most of the energy savings come from other household energy bills. If lighting costs alone could be determined for the "average" house, they might total about $100 per year.

Turning off unused lights and switching to more efficient kinds of lighting will not make a big difference, but it will make some difference.

Good lighting management is considerably more rewarding in businesses, industries, schools, hospitals, and local government buildings where lighting accounts for a bigger percentage of the total bill and can affect the operation of other, more expensive systems such as heating and cooling.

Q. How about giving us some Christmas decorating ideas that don't require the use of extra lights?

A. Gladly. You'll probably think of many others related to the following list:

- Trim the tree with light-reflecting ornaments, such as small mirrors, glittery bulbs, glass or metal ornaments, and gold or silver foil or tinsel.
- Tie colorful satin ribbons and bows on branches or drape them like garlands around the tree.

- Find some inexpensive artificial fruit ornaments at a discount store and sparkle up the tree with lemons, oranges, pears, and apples.

- Sew some ornaments using simple shapes and colorful fabric scraps.

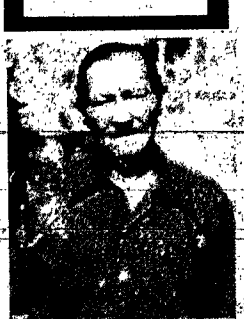

- Use decorations that stand out against their backgrounds. White or near-white decorations show up well against dark backgrounds, for example.

- Cluster candles of various sizes and shapes together (away from curtains or other materials that might catch fire).

- Spray a small leafless tree branch white and trim it with tinsel, shiny decorations, wrapped candies, or other bright material. You can adapt this idea to make centerpieces for buffet tables or unique displays for empty corners of your home.

The Most Qualified Man For The Job

FRANCIS L. "FRANK" LEE

HANCOCK COUNTY
CIRCUIT CLERK

For the past twenty years I have been a full time farmer. I was in the dairy business until seven years ago when my farming operation changed to soybeans and cattle.

I am presently serving as president of the Hancock County Farm Bureau. This is not a full time job. It requires very little of my time. I have served on various committees in the county; among some are the Chamber of Commerce, Library Board, Soil Conservation, Regional Housing Authority, and several years on the Election Commission.

I am a member of the American Legion, Cattlemen's Assn., and a member of Union Baptist Church where I serve as a deacon. I am also a Mason.

I graduated from Kiln High School and attended Mississippi State University for one year when my education was interrupted by my being drafted into the Navy where I served from 1943 until 1946 in the South Pacific.

Having been associated with the Election Commission, I have become very familiar with the office of the Circuit Clerk, and this has prompted my decision to seek this office. I feel that I have the ability to serve the people of Hancock County in this capacity.

If elected to this office I will serve it full time and it will become a part of my life just as every other challenge that I have undertaken.

Bataan survivors to be honored

By ELLIS CUEVAS
The Metropolitan Dinner Club of the Mississippi Gulf Coast will honor the survivors of the Bataan-Death March and the Siege of Corregidor on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Broadwater Beach Hotel, Biloxi.

Those to be honored from Hancock County will include Joseph C. Baxter, Fred Curet Jr., John Gunderson, Albert Katool and Sidney Snow.

Guest speaker for the affair will be Major Bert Bank, USAF, retired, himself a survivor of the Bataan March.

Tuesday—Dec. 7—will mark the 41st anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and the Philippines.

Baxter's incredible story of survival at Bataan will be one of several told tonight at 8 p.m. on a NBC-TV documentary (WDSU, Channel 5, New Orleans). He was imprisoned for three years and six months after his capture by the Japanese.

At ceremonies honoring the Gulf Coast POWs, Leo Seal Jr., president of Hancock Bank, will give a history of the Gulf Coast area.

Bank is a resident of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and was captured by the Japanese and spent 33 months in a prison camp.

He survived the Bataan Death March and at the time of his liberation by the American forces, he was blinded and weighed 102 pounds.

Awarded the Purple Heart, he spent nearly three years in various hospitals throughout the United States and authored a book, "Back From the Living Dead," which recounts his prison experiences.

Billiot

Billiot's stepbrothers, said his father married Audrey and they moved to Leetown when Billiot was about five-years-old.

"It was a sunny day, a rain shower came up and he (Billiot) said, 'God, damn it's raining like hell out here!'"

Croll said: "When we opened his toy-box there were 'Playboy' centerfolds in it," he stated.

Croll said his father was a strict disciplinarian, but he would always let his wife correct Billiot.

Donald Croll, another brother, said while working part time shucking oysters at a New Orleans French Quarter restaurant while in college, he would obtain free meals for Billiot when he was wandering in the area.

Croll reported he also got Billiot a job at the restaurant, but he did not show up the next day to work.

"My outlook of Jimmy (Billiot) was he was spoiled... one-tenth of what he got for Christmas would have been fine for me," he stated.

The jury reached its capital murder verdict at 2:30 p.m.

Earlier in Assistant District Attorney Scherry LeSueur's final arguments to the jury, she said, "Sympathy has no part in this trial... I ask you for justice."

"James Billiot has the ability to use people. He is not and was not insane. Don't let him put it over on you," she stated.

Sills contended, "James Billiot is sick, he has a mental disease and did not know right from wrong."

Haas labeled Billiot as a "tragic case" and said no evidence proved he robbed the Crolls.

"Maybe his way of life is on trial," Haas added.

Necaise said Billiot knew the difference of right from wrong and planned to murder the Crolls based on testimony of Leo Jones of Leetown.

The final witness, Dr. Henry Maggio of Gulfport, testified Thursday morning.

The psychiatrist said in a Jan. 8 examination he found Billiot to be competent and able to assist attorneys in his defense.

He reported Billiot suffers from polydrug use and an antisocial disorder.

Maggio said Billiot stated he watched from the front porch as the devil killed the Crolls.

"There are holes in Billiot's superego, like Swiss cheese," Maggio said in describing Billiot as a manipulative individual.

Maggio said he previously testified that Billiot was a paranoid schizophrenic, but diagnostic criteria has changed and the alleged murderer does not meet those new requirements for the mental illness.

Fair

we should be ready for it."

"It is an opportunity for us to showcase our state, this will help us in getting visitors to return in later years adding to Mississippi's tourism," she added.

Tourism now brings nine million visitors a year in the state, according to Miss Haas who said the six months of the World's Fair will bring and additional one and half million to Mississippi.

Treutel brought the group up to date on what Hancock County World's Fair Steering Committee has been doing.

D.E. Wilcox, a member of the La-Miss-Ala: Rapid Transit Commission reported progress being made.

Wilcox stated, "The feasibility study should be ready by the end of December and things look real good at this time for getting a couple train stops in Hancock County."

Jeanne Garcia, talked on how she has made contacts with six tour groups in New Orleans and the prospects 'look good' for having tour buses visit Hancock from the city.

Garcia allowed, "I have been working with three New Orleans hotels who are possibly interested in bringing the wives of convention delegates to Hancock County for a tour."

"The places we are discussing include Diamondhead, NSTL, The Hospitality Station, Buccaneer State Park, St. Augustine Seminary and several restaurants in the area. A 45-minute shopping spree with local merchants is also being taken into consideration," she said.

"The three tour bus companies are looking at some similar tours. These people have been meeting at my home and we plan other meetings in the near future," Garcia allowed.

Clarice Gustin talked about the Bread and Breakfast concept for Hancock County, saying, "I am awaiting more information from a national group in Washington D.C. about working through them. It is possible for the chamber to be a screening committee and we will be receiving more information in a couple weeks. I would like persons interested in the Bread and Breakfast concept to call me at the chamber."

As the meeting closed Haas told about the Governor's World Fair Council meeting to be held on Dec. 14 in Jackson with all the state council chairman invited to attend.

"An economic impact study finding will be released; a report of an exhibit committee who visited the site in New Orleans; and a discussion on a Community Services, Inc. survey to be conducted over a six month period to see if private sector funds should be raised will be among some of the topics discussed at the Jackson meeting," Haas stated.

HANUKKAH BEGUN
"Hanukkah," a half-hour documentary film hosted by Edward Asner and produced by Mississippi ETV, can be seen this holiday season at 8:30 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 9, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

"Hanukkah" recounts the events more than 2,000 years ago that led to the celebration every year of the eight-day midwinter festival by Jews the world over.

Says Asner in the film, "Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights, the Festival of the Rededication of the Jewish temple...celebrated every year in December, Hanukkah recalls the bravery, tenacity and historical circumstance—some call it miracle—that permitted the ancient Israelites over 2,000 years ago to preserve their freedom and with it the spiritual source from which Judaism draws its meaning."

The program utilizes graphics, animation, dramatic presentation and the Hanukkah home religious service. Asner explores the historical basis for the holiday, and graphics from a variety of eras and artists allow the viewer to see the events through many different interpretations.

Hanukkah is a time of family unity, and the program uses the home service as the thread of continuity that links the historical exposition to modern practices and beliefs.

"Hanukkah" is a production of the Mississippi Center for Educational Television.

HOLIDAY SPECIALS

Two special programs fill prime time on Saturday evening, Dec. 11, on Mississippi ETV.

"The Nutcracker," the classic holiday ballet set to Tchaikovsky's haunting music, will be presented at 7. Ballet superstars Mikhail Baryshnikov and Gelsey Kirkland star in the 90-minute production.

Richard Burton and Peter O'Toole recreate a historic confrontation between friendship and principle in the acclaimed "Becket."

We have retired our old 'Bits 'n Pieces' heading and are now sporting one designed by our friend Audrey Comeaux of Audrey Comeaux Advertising Agency. We do want to thank Audrey for the art work and suggestion of a new heading.

Apparently there are still motorists who should not be licensed to drive automobiles.

Friday evening we were driving west on US-90, in the city limits of Bay St. Louis, and a school bus was traveling East. The bus driver extended all the necessary signs and lights, yet, while the vehicle was unloading students, not one, but two autos which were behind the bus, just passed it up while it was stopped.

This is a serious violation, and if we could have gotten their auto tag numbers, we would have reported them to the proper authorities.

It is extremely important for motorist not to pass school buses when the driver is loading or unloading students. It is as simple as that.

Christmas is fast approaching and many youngsters have gotten their lists together for Santa.

We are in hopes many of the children will visit Santa this afternoon at 4:30 p.m. when he arrives at the Hancock County Courthouse in Bay St. Louis. We are in hopes this weather will change from today (Saturday), so Santa will have a good trip.

Santa's visit is sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and official lighting of the Christmas Tree will be performed by local elected officials.

So we hope to see you at the Christmas Tree Lighting.

Persons looking for a special gift for someone and maybe not knowing just what to purchase, we have a couple of suggestions.

The folks at Hancock Industries on US-90 in Bay St. Louis have been very busy making all types of Christmas Gifts to sell.

It is a big thrill for those at Hancock Industries when they are able to sell an item they have made.

It gives them a feeling of being important like all of us want to be.

Also in Waveland, the Forget Me Not Shop, next to the Hospitality Station has a lot of gift ideas made by senior citizens and handicapped persons.

These two places offer gifts which will mean a few nickles to the people making the items.

So, if you have a problem in deciding a gift, visit either Hancock Industries or the Forget Me Not Shop. They may be able to solve your gift giving problems.

The rains early Saturday morning have caused concern to many residents, especially those living in Shoreline Park as many of the streets were covered with water.

It is an age-old problem; but, whenever there are heavy rains with extra high tides, the streets will flood. US-90 to Gulfport and Biloxi is another road with problems with the rains we have had in recent hours.

There are many people in the woods hunting, if they can wade through the water. We know some wives may think they were hitting the 'suds' if they come back and report seeing a bird eight foot tall than can run 80 miles-per-hour.

Saturday morning Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson and Investigator Alvin Ladner were investigating the escape of such an animal from Judge Levy's Jourdan River residence.

It is a emu, from Australia and is eight foot tall and can run 80 miles-per-hour, and if you see such an animal, call the sheriff's office.

What an item to start off the day I change column headings.

Tuesday is a very important election day for Hancock Countians, for they will elect a circuit clerk.

There are six candidates, and most electors feel there will be a run-off two weeks later.

Still, it is the duty of all qualified electors to cast a ballot for the candidate of their choice.

The polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 6 p.m., this Tuesday, Dec. 7.

Be sure to vote, and also offer to take your neighbor to the polls, if he or she does not have transportation.

Tonight we plan on watching the NBC-TV documentary on the survivors of Bataan at 6 p.m. WDSU Channel 6.

Our main reason is because Hancock County native James C. (J.C.) Baxter will be one of the survivors who will tell his story.

We had the honor of being the first to interview and publish his horrors as a POW in 1980. It is a story worth watching, one everyone American should know.

We have freedoms, yet many Americans paid the supreme sacrifice for them.

WORLD'S FAIR COMMITTEE MEETING—David Trentel, left, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's World's Fair Steering Council chairman, introduces Tish Haas, right, a member of the Mississippi Tourism Division at Thursday night meeting. A report was given by Ms. Haas on how preparations are necessary throughout the state for the event to take place in New Orleans in 1984. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

HANCOCK COUNTY PREPARES—Some 36 persons attended a meeting of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Louisiana World Fair Council's Steering Committee meeting Thursday held at the Library on Coleman Avenue. Among those present before the meeting began were from left, Michael Haas; Pat Harvill; Mrs. Michael Haas; Delmar Wilcox; J. Norton Haas; Jerry Bourg; A.A. SPECIAL REPORT:

War on Drug Smugglers

A growing problem for law enforcement officials and citizens, particularly in many of our southeastern or coastal states, is the drug smuggling traffic from sources outside the United States.

President Reagan called national attention to this situation during his recent visit to South Florida, and his declaration of intensified enforcement against drug trafficking has the support of many of us in Congress and around the country.

As a member of the special Senate task force on drug enforcement, I have been concerned that a more coordinated and comprehensive effort be undertaken to curb this drug smuggling and the harm it is doing to the people of the United States.

It is my belief that the flow of drugs into our country cannot be effectively broken unless we marshal more resources, the money, manpower and technology necessary to combat this sophisticated drug trafficking.

We cannot rely just on one or two federal agencies to do the job. The tracking and surveillance capabilities of the Coast Guard, Navy and other units of our Armed Forces should be utilized, within Constitutional bounds, to help stop this drug smuggling.

An example of success with this kind of coordinated effort was the action of the guided missile cruiser, USS Mississippi, becoming recently the first Navy ship to conduct an intercept of a drug smuggling vessel. The seizure occurred about 100 miles off the coast of Colombia and involved the capture of a converted shrimp boat carrying 30 tons of marijuana.

Drug smugglers have no qualms about employing modern equipment, ships, aircraft and technology, in making their runs. Our law enforcement personnel must be able to utilize the equipment necessary to carry out their tasks.

Local and state law enforcement agencies cannot do the job without additional help. Coping with an influx of drug smugglers on top of their other responsibilities is asking more than most are capable of today.

Our law enforcement officials in Mississippi can attest to the growth of this problem. There have been numerous incidents in recent months to indicate that drug traffickers are invading our state through the air and by coastal waters.

Congress has not been idle. The Senate has passed a bill, which I helped sponsor, to toughen the penalties for drug smuggling—to impose heavier prison sentences and fines on those convicted of engaging in this insidious traffic.

Total funding for the various federal agencies working to combat the drug traffic has been increased from about $470 million in 1979 to an estimated $695 million in outlays next year. Funding for drug abuse programs administered through federal agencies has also been increased the past three years.

Incidentally, Mississippians can be proud that Dr. Carlton Turner, the President's director of drug abuse policy, is from our state, and was on the faculty at Ole Miss prior to coming to the White House. There are many other dedicated law enforcement officials and citizens at all levels in our state who are working daily to win the war on drug trafficking.

I want them to know that we here in Congress are behind them and I, for one, am committed to helping see that they have the resources to effectively carry out their mission.

The American public deserves to be protected against this illicit drug traffic which is corrupting many of our citizens, physically, morally and financially.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

With the recession apparently well upon us, how much should I cut back on my ad budget? I Don't Want To Take Any Chances.

Dear AC: If you are afraid of chances, don't cut at all.

A recent study, reported in ADVERTISING AGE, found that companies that did not cut their ad budgets during the 1974-75 recession significantly outgrew companies that did cut back during the two year period.

And by 1978 the growth of those who refused to give in was much more dramatic.

The study, done by the Laboratory of Advertising Performance, a division of McGraw-Hill Research, found that companies not reducing their ad budgets experienced sales growth averaging 12 per cent more than companies who had reduced ad spending in either of the two recession years.

And by 1978, the study found, companies not cutting back during the two recession years had sales 132 per cent above 1973 levels. Those companies who cut back during the recession showed sales in 1978 of only 79 per cent over the 1973 level.

Of the durable goods manufacturers analyzed in the report those who did not reduce ad spending realized a 163 per cent sales growth from 1973 to 1978. Those that cut back grew only 83 per cent.

But the most dramatic variation was in machinery, where the steady advertisers grew 186 per cent during the five year period, while those who reduced advertising during the two year recession period grew only 104 per cent in the five years.

Among non-durable goods advertisers, the ones that did not let up had grown 86 per cent in the five year time span, while the faint-hearted grew only by 75 per cent in the same period.

So the recession of the 70s was an opportunity for those who took advantage of the situation. They simply got a jump on the market, because their competition decided to sit one out.

Next week we'll discuss a second part of your question—how can you afford to promote when sales are slow?

What's the difference in a recession and a depression, anyway? Can You Explain This?

Either, of course, refers to a slowdown in the economy, and the term "recession" was coined during the recovery years following the Great Depression to minimize the public reaction to recurring slow-downs. But someone once explained it this way: Recession is when all your friends have lost their jobs. Depression is when you lose yours.

Government funding two Alcorn projects

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently approved two new projects for funding at Alcorn State University in Lorman.

Both are five-year projects which have been funded for a total of $510,000; a University spokesman says.

The objective of the first project, 'The Effects of Growth Regulators on Sweet Sorghum and on Selected Vegetables' is to determine the effects of various growth regulators on the sugar content of sweet sorghum and the yield of selected vegetable crops.

This project has been funded for the amount of $260,000. It will involve laboratory, greenhouse and field experiments and will be directed by Dr. Robert Leard, assistant professor of chemistry at ASU, the spokesman reports.

The study is important to the large number of family farmers in southwest Mississippi who produce vegetables and sweet sorghum as cash crops, the spokesman says.

The second project, 'Dynamics of Life Plans and Attainment of Low-Income Youth - A Longitudinal Analysis,' will be directed by Dr. Charles J.D. Tillman, CRD specialist and director of Title I in the Cooperative Extension Program at ASU.

This $250,000 project involves seven states—Alabama, Kentucky, Michigan, Tennessee, Virginia, North Carolina and Mississippi.

Further information concerning these research projects may be obtained by contacting the Office of the Research Director at ASU, Room 423 in the new Administration Classroom Building, extension 6136 or 6137.

FmHA reports lending policies

Basic farm lending policies for 1983 have been announced by James L. Perry, state director of the Farmers Home Administration.

Perry stated that the adequate servicing of delinquent and other problem Farmer Program loans to assist borrowers overcome financial and management difficulties and to protect the Government's interest continues as the prime concern.

He emphasized that FmHA at all levels will make every effort to assist financially distressed borrowers overcome their difficulties.

"Borrowers will be assured that we understand their problems and that we will continue working with them on a fair but firm basis, using all our authorities to assist them to remain in farming when their farming operations are feasible," said Perry.

"Assistance to borrowers will be continued to those who:

1. Have acted in good faith by demonstrating sincerity and honesty in meeting their agreements and promises made with FmHA.

2. Have been unable to pay their accounts as scheduled due primarily to circumstances beyond their control.

3. Apply production and financial management practices that are considered by FmHA as acceptable and suitable for their type of operation.

4. Have properly maintained chattel and real estate security and properly accounted for the sale of mortgaged property, including crops, livestock and livestock production.

Subordinations will again be used as a major method for Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) borrowers to obtain financing for their 1983 farm operating expenses, according to Perry.

FmHA loan funds are limited for 1983, so they will be used to the maximum extent only to supplement other credit sources.

"We will continue to meet with bankers, production credit associations, Federal Land Bank representatives, governor's staff, members of the State Legislature and agricultural leaders to explain FmHA policies for 1983. We intend to run the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) in a businesslike manner in support of President Reagan's policies of using American's tax money on a sound basis and to the best interests of all concerned," said Perry.

LOANS AND GRANTS
FmHA made 85 loans and grants to communities and rural businesses in Mississippi during fiscal year 1982, which ended Sept. 30, Perry also noted.

Nature series continues on Mississippi ETV tonight

"In Praise of God," the second installment in the six-part mini-series, "The Discovery of Animal Behavior," being broadcast over PBS as part of the weekly Nature series, focuses at 8 p.m. tonight on the theologians and clerics of the 17th and 18th centuries, "naturalists in Holy Orders," who were among the first to study animal behavior.

The show is broadcast on Channel 19, Biloxi and Channel 13, Hancock Cable.

Utilizing dramatic recreations and wildlife photography, the program showcases the work of:

—John Ray, a 17th century theologian who, in 1649, began to catalogue "the works of the Creation," starting with plants and later including birds;

—Sir Francis Willughby, who studied with John Ray and subsequently accompanied his teacher on bird cataloging expeditions to the Farne Islands and elsewhere; —Rev. Gilbert White, who made important discoveries about bird songs and was the first person to utilize behavior (in the form of song) as a means of identifying bird species;

—Charles LeRoy, an educated French gamekeeper who, in 1760, experimented with wolves and deer in order to determine differences in their habits; —and Charles Waterton, a friend of Charles Darwin and a worldwide traveller who wrote extensively about wildlife he discovered during his journeys through the South American jungles.

In Program Two, Brian Gear is seen as John Ray; Jack Tomalin as young John Ray; Angela Barlow as Ray's mother; Bob Press as Ray's father; Andrew Fell as the Hon. Francis Willughby; Michael Cronin as Rev. Gilbert White; William Whympers as the Hon. Daines Barrington; Sandy MacKenzie as the Harpsichord Tuner; Michael McKevitt as Charles LeRoy; Thane Bettany as Charles Waterton; and Edwin Brown as Charles Darwin.

"The Discovery of Animal Behavior" is a co-production of the BBC's Natural History Unit, RM Productions and WNET New York.

John Sparks is the series producer, Michael Salisbury produced Program Two. Noted paleoanthropologist Dr. Donald Johanson, director of the Institute of Human Origins in Berkeley, California, is the on-camera host.

The Discovery of Animal Behavior is presented over PBS as part of the Nature series which series is made possible with funding from public television stations.

David Heeley is the producer of the series and George Page is the executive producer.

SPECTACULAR LOCATION FOOTAGE and dramatized reenactments are combined in The Discovery of Animal Behavior, part of the new public television series, Nature. "In Praise of God," airing Sunday, Dec. 5 at 8 p.m., includes the work of the Rev. Gilbert White (portrayed here by Michael Cronin) whose 18th century studies of crickets are still valid today.

NASA awards Martin added Michoud contract

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has awarded a 33-month contract valued at approximately $43 million to Martin Marietta Aerospace to provide facility support services at NASA's Michoud Assembly Facility in New Orleans East.

The award is an addition to the company's existing contract to manufacture Space Shuttle propellant tanks at the facility.

The activities affected include facility operations and maintenance, security and fire protection, janitorial services, reproduction and photography, medical and food services.

The primary purpose of the Michoud Facility is the manufacture of the Space Shuttle tanks. NASA management determined it would be more efficient for the tank manufacturer to have overall responsibility for both production and facility support functions.

The bulk of this support is provided to Martin Marietta and its employees.

After a transition period Jan. 1 through Jan. 14, Martin Marietta will assume responsibility for this support work Jan. 15.

Some of the work will be accomplished by Martin Marietta employees while some will be performed by other firms under contract to the company. The contract extends through September 1985.

The award was made by NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala., which owns the Michoud Facility. Martin Marietta manufactures the Shuttle external tanks under contract to the Marshall center.

UNO chemistry program lauded

The University of New Orleans PhD program in chemistry is among 145 programs included in a national study recently published by the National Academy Press.

"The UNO chemistry department's PhD program compares favorably with all other institutions, including many which have been in existence much longer," said UNO Chancellor Leon J. Richelle in a recent announcement.

The assessment, which evaluated individual research doctorate programs based on 16 criteria, followed a two-year study of a committee which included representatives of the American Council of Learned Societies, the American Council on Education, the Social Sciences Research Council and the National Research Council.

The 145 research doctorate chemistry programs which were assessed accounted for approximately 93 percent of the total number of chemistry doctorates earned from U.S. universities during the five-year period of 1976-80, said Richelle.

NOTICE

The Hancock County election Commission has scheduled a public test of the automatic vote tabulating equipment for the December 7, 1982 Special Election for Circuit Clerk. The public is invited to observe this test at 9:30 a.m. in the Courtroom at the Hancock County Courthouse in Bay St. Louis.

By David H. Jones

'ST. ELSEWHERE' is rapidly developing into a top-notch dramatic hour.

Resembling a serious 'M*A*S*H' with 'Hill Street Blues' overtones, 'St. Elsewhere' has steadily matured since its debut in early October.

'St. Elsewhere' is a program concerning a fictional Boston hospital named St. Eligius. Since there is a bigger, more modern facility across town, the hospital has become known as St. Elsewhere.

The camera work in 'Elsewhere' is faintly reminiscent of the bobbling, Altman-like introduction in 'Hill Street' wherein Sgt. Esterhaus briefs his troops before dismissing them to the streets with the cautious warning, 'Let's be careful out there.' In 'St. Elsewhere,' as in 'Hill Street,' the dialog and music mesh to form an erratic, sometimes confusing, but always entertaining hour.

It has taken awhile for 'Elsewhere' to establish its characters since there are so many and each is very human and delicate. A prime example is the Dr. Ben Samuels character. In the premier episode, which mainly concerned David Morse's character, Dr. Samuels, played effectively by David Birney, roamed the corridors confessing to nearly all the women-on-the-hospital-staff that he had venereal disease and they, very likely, did also.

It was a strong statement toward a taboo subject on commercial television. It also lent the impression that Samuels was some kind of medical Romeo, with little or no regard for members of the opposite sex.

Samuels was lost in the shuffle of character development until he surfaced in a recent episode. This time his patient was a small boy with a broken leg who needed a simple operation to place a pin in his ankle. Samuels spent his free time playing electronic football with the boy and pushing him through the congested hallways in guided tour fashion. When Samuels is confronted by his supervisor, played very low-key by veteran actor Ed Flanders, he introduces him as 'the boss.'

To which the boy responds, 'I thought you said (Bruce) Springsteen was the boss.'

Later the boy dies after the operation when his body produces an embolism. Ed Begley Jr. ('Cat People') tells Samuels, 'He died Ben, just like that.'

At the show's conclusion, Samuels sits in a bar drinking his sorrows through double shots of bourbon. In a drunken, poignant speech, Samuels tells his life's story to a young girl and offers insight into his sensitive nature and his views on life and death, in which he recites verses from John Lennon's song 'Instant Karma.' It was a powerful finale. And Birney was brilliant!

Besides a potpourri of medical jargon, 'St. Elsewhere' also contains its share of comedy and sexual innuendo, some of which is rather macabre. And its multitude of players offer endless possibilities for this multi-tracked drama.

Still 'St. Elsewhere' struggles for respective ratings. But if it continues to provide excellent programming as it has in recent weeks, 'Hill Street Blues' will be facing some stiff competition in next year's Emmy awards.

'St. Elsewhere' is telecast on Tuesdays at 9 p.m. on NBC. Tune in and enjoy, you won't be disappointed.

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

"I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." — John 10:10

By Shawn Murphy

One thing that has always impressed me; about Jesus Christ is that he was always upfront about what it took to be his disciple.

The cost was always counted before one was asked to follow Him. There was no rosy picture, painted of this pilgrimage, for this was no stained glass religion that he was calling us to.

Listen to these words penned from Luke's hand.

"As they were walking along the road, a man said to him, 'I will follow you wherever you go.'"

Jesus replied, "Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of man has no place to lay his head."

He said to another, "Follow me."

But the man replied, "Lord, first let me go and bury my father."

Jesus said to him, "Let the dead bury their own dead, but you go and proclaim the Kingdom of God."

Still another said, "I will follow you, Lord; but first let me go back and say good-bye to my family."

Jesus replied, "No one who puts his hand to the plow and looks back is fit for service in the Kingdom of God." (Luke 9:57-62)

Jesus makes it abundantly clear that there is priority, urgency and total commitment expected of one who would follow Him. Jesus will come first in our lives, or not at all!

On another occasion Jesus said the following:

"If anyone comes to me and does not hate his father and mother, his wife and children, his brothers and sisters — yes, even his own life — he cannot be my disciple. And anyone who does not carry his cross and follow me cannot be my disciple." (Luke 14:26-27)

Matthew records the same teaching this way:

"He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me." (Matt. 10:37)

This shows that hate is to be taken in the comparative sense. "To hate" stands for "to love less"; when a choice between relatives or one's own life and Christ is before us, we must choose to follow Christ; in doing this, we are hating our relatives (i.e. loving them less) and loving Christ more.

Even at the beginning of his ministry Jesus spoke of counting the cost.

"Enter through the narrow gate. For wide is the gate and broad is the road that leads to destruction, and many enter through it. But small is the gate and narrow the road that leads to life, and only a few find it." (Matt. 7:13-14)

There are countless other passages we could explore along this theme. And yet, this will suffice.

Well, are you totally discouraged about following Jesus Christ? Don't feel Jesus was simply sifting out the ones that didn't have their hearts in the right place. He didn't want lukewarm followers. Of them he said, "I will spew you out of my mouth!"

Accept Jesus in the manner he asked you to. Nothing less will do. Read the book of Acts to find out how to become a Christian. Then continue to study His Word and to do that which he has asked you to. And you can have the "Blessed Assurance" that you have heard others sing about!

If you are not already a Christian, give your family and yourself the greatest Christmas present of all time. Become a follower of Jesus Christ and a possessor of eternal life! May God bless you as you seek Him.

TELEPHONE PIONEERS—Gulf Sands Life Member Club of Telephone Pioneers of America gathered recently for the group's annual banquet at the Broadwater Beach Hotel in Biloxi. Some 125 members participated in the event marking the 71st anniversary of Pioneers nationwide. Head table guests include, from left, Johnny Franklin of Long Beach, South Central Bell staff specialist for switched services; Sarah Hill of

Marketing specialist reveals fine points for holiday baking

It's not just what goes into the recipe that determines the success of holiday cakes, cookies, or pies. What the recipe goes into also has an effect on the outcome.

Ann O. Rushing, marketing specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said the type, size, shape and even the color of the utensil, as well as where in the oven you place them, can have a considerable effect on baking results.

Mrs. Rushing had these tips for holiday, and everyday, baking success:

"For best results, make sure you use a trusted, standard recipe. These recipes have been tested and the ingredient proportions have been well established.

"Sometimes the ingredients in a family recipe have been changed or forgotten as the recipe has been handed down from one generation to the next," Mrs. Rushing said.

"If your family recipes are not turning out as well as you would like, compare them to a similar standard recipe to see if the ingredient proportions are the same."

The secret to golden brown cookies is a shiny aluminum cookie sheet without sides. The aluminum will spread the heat evenly, where as dark tin cookie sheets absorb the heat and make the browning uneven.

Using a cookie sheet that is too large can also cause uneven browning because heat is trapped under the sheet which prevents air from circulating. For best results, allow two inches of free space on all sides of the cookie sheet and bake one sheet at a time.

Glass absorbs the heat and bakes faster. So, if you use glass baking dishes for cakes, bread, rolls or biscuits, reduce the oven temperature called for in the recipe by 25 degrees. It isn't necessary to lower the oven temperature for casseroles, meats or pies baked in glass dishes.

Baked frozen pies will look as tempting as homemade, if you follow the package directions. The shiny aluminum foil pans used for pies reflect the heat and prevent browning, sometimes resulting in a soggy, underdone bottom crust.

That's why manufacturers recommend placing the pie on an aluminum cookie sheet. The cookie sheet helps to conduct heat to the bottom crust for browning.

To be sure that your homemade pies are golden brown, use a pie pan that absorbs heat—dark tin, anodized aluminum, or glass may be used.

If the edges of your pie crust are too brown, form a collar of aluminum foil, 1 to 1½ inches wide, to reflect heat and slow browning. Remove the collar during the last 10-15 minutes of baking.

If you have purchased a range recently, your new oven is probably quite different from your old one.

Very often old ovens are out of temperature adjustment and you may have changed the time and temperature accordingly. With your new oven, this will not be necessary.

Use the temperature and estimated baking time recommended in recipes without making any changes. And, follow the recommendations just mentioned for choosing the proper utensil.
